THE CELEBRATION OF NEVADA'S SEMICENTENNIAL OF STATEHOOD

JEANNE ELIZABETH WIER

On the last day of the month of October, 1864, the State of Nevada was admitted to the Union. The semicentennial of that event was celebrated in Reno under the auspices of the Nevada Historical Society by appropriate exercises on October 29, 30, 31, and November 1, 1914. In preparation for the event a self-constituted committee consisting of Mayor F. J. Shair, Mr. E. F. Lunsford, Mr. F. R. Pargellis, Mr. H. F. Alciatore, Prof. S. C. Feemster, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Gottwaldt, Supt. B. D. Billinghamurst, Dr. W. W. Hess, Mrs. M. L. Golden, Dr. R. Adams, Mr. R. L. Fulton, and Miss Jeanne Elizabeth Wier worked out the program and arranged for its rendition.

The features selected for the celebration were a historical pageant, a pageant ball, a pioneer luncheon, public school exercises and a Sunday evening patriotic service. Later the University football game with the Barbarians, Saturday afternoon, and the Shriners' entertainment at the Majestic Theater, Friday and Saturday evenings, were included in the celebration. Both of these events had been previously scheduled for those dates and hence occupied the best places on Admission Day, October 31, and Admission Day eve, October 30, to the exclusion of the truly patriotic part of the program. The historical pageant was thereby forced to take Thursday afternoon, the 29th, for its date, while the Pioneer luncheon fell on Friday.

Subcommittees were appointed as follows:

Mr. Pargellis—Use of Mackay Field and suspension of college exercises on Pageant Day.

Mr. Gottwaldt—Governor's proclamation of celebration; Elks and Commercial Club open house; railroad rates.

Mayor Shair—Securing cooperation from City Council.

Supt. Billinghamurst—Half holiday for public schools Pageant Day and privilege of absence for necessary rehearsals.

Mrs. Golden—Participation of Century Club in celebration.

Mr. Hess—Cooperation of ministerial association.

Judge Seeds, A. A. Codd, W. M. Gottwaldt, E. F. Lunsford, Homer Mooney, R. L. Fulton—Committee on mailing list and publicity.

Mr. Alciatore and Mr. Feemster—Pioneer luncheon committee.

Dr. R. Adams, Mrs. M. L. Golden, and Mr. F. M. Lee—Pioneer organization.

Mrs. M. L. Golden—Costume ball.

Pageant Committees:

Seat Sale—Mr. Wm. Cann, Prof. N. E. Wilson, Mr. S. W. Porteous.

Soldiers—Mayor F. J. Shair, Pres. A. W. Hendrick, Mr. A. W. Cahlan.

Music—Prof. John VIII.

Lighting—Prof. J. G. Scrugham.

Scenery—Mr. Glenn Hurst.

Special railroad rates were granted for the occasion by the Southern Pacific Railroad. The following invitation was sent out to Pioneers and the press of the State also kindly extended the invitation :

THE STATE OF NEVADA
 THE NEVADA HISTORICAL SOCIETY
and
 THE CITY OF RENO
Cordially invite you to attend the

 NEVADA STATEHOOD
and the home gathering of Nevada's former citizens to be held in Reno, Nevada, October twenty-ninth, thirtieth, thirty-first,
and November first, nineteen hundred and fourteen

Many regrets were received from those unable to attend, of which we print a few herewith :

253 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
 October 21, 1914.

MY DEAR MISS WIER: It was a great pleasure to hear from you again, and I wish it were possible for me to accept your kind and very tempting invitation to be present for the Semicentennial Celebration at the end of the month. I would have liked nothing better.

These are busy days for the telegraph man with a war of such magnitude, but I hope later on to see my way clear to paying the University a visit, in which I am and always shall be deeply interested.

I am Yours faithfully, CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

1605 BAKER STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
 October 27, 1914.

DEAR MISS WIER: Thank you for the invitation to attend your ceremonies in Reno on October 29, which reached me promptly from New York City in eight days' time, my old address still being able to find me. I was a little girl in Aurora, Esmeralda County, when the torchlight procession celebrating the great day for Nevada passed up the canyon by my father's toll-gate, on its way to town. I expected to be allowed to march too, with my brothers and father. But my mother asked who would keep the lights in the windows for their return and cheer them as they passed by, if the women and the little girls all marched, too? So I dried my tears and kept the candles burning and learned to cheer that night when the men passed by. And, though I cast a ballot today, I think my mother was right. I attended the first public school in Reno. My father was D. H. Haskell, who laid out the town for the C. P. R. R. as land agent.

Very truly yours, ELLA STERLING MIGHELS.

CARSON CITY, NEVADA, October 15, 1914.

MISS J. E. WIER, Reno, Nevada.

DEAR MADAM: I see by the Journal your request to obtain names of the old Pioneers of Nevada or their children, and, as I am one of the Pioneer children of Carson City, I thought I would write you. When Nevada was admitted to Statehood I was a little shaver three years of age. There was a celebration and I was dressed to represent Uncle Sam and placed on a large dry-goods box on the grounds where the Capitol building now stands. Three large bonfires were lighted in the evening and the soldiers from Camp Nye west of Carson City marched down the street. The celebration ended with a dance in my mother's house.

I would like to attend the celebration in Reno, but, as I suffered the amputation of a limb last March, it is impossible to do so. My half-brother, Jas. D. Moss, was born in Carson City 51 years ago and is still a resident of this city. John Little of Carson City is the oldest pioneer; Robert Fulstone comes next, having come here in 1862. Henry Keyser and James Gardner are also pioneers, Gardner claiming to be the first white child born in Carson City.

Respectfully,

W. T. KING.

OAKLAND, CAL., October 29, 1914.

MISS J. E. WIER, Reno, Nevada.

MY DEAR MISS WIER: Pleased to acknowledge receipt of invitation to attend the semicentennial celebration of Nevada's Statehood, and it would certainly give me a great deal of pleasure could I be present, but it is impossible for me to attend.

I trust that the celebration will be a great success and I appreciate the courtesy of having received an invitation from the State that is so dear to me.

Yours very truly,

C. B. ZABRISKIE.

Mrs. Idah Meacham Strowbridge sent with her regrets the following poem by Elwyn Irving Hoffman:

THE VISIONS OF THE TRAIL

BY ELWYN IRVING HOFFMAN

Across the Desert, parched and hot, the brown trails wind away
To where—remote—the ranges tower, and purple shadows play.
And by each one of all these trails wait Death, and Thirst, and Pain;
For many men will go, and go; though few come home again.

The cactus, grim and ghostly, points its finger to the sky
As though forewarned of tragedy, and how men gasp and die.
The gray sand folds, and then refolds, its silent, drifting sheet,
As if to cover bones that bleach beneath the desert heat.

And yet the long brown trails remain, nor ever fade away;
Year after year, by boot and hoof, ground deeply there to stay.
And in the heat-glare hanging o'er their windings through the sand
Fair Visions rise—and fade—and rise, and lure with beck'ning hand.

And so men follow, year by year, these Visions of the Trail
With hearts as steadfast as was his who sought the Holy Grail;
And, year by year, they pay the price; yet staunchly hold their way
To find the Dream that hides beyond where purple shadows play!

On October 27 Governor Oddie issued the following proclamation:

THE HISTORY OF THE NEVADA PAGEANT

The pageant of Nevada history presents in dramatic form the history of this State from the Spanish period of the government of New Spain to the present time. It is a series of living moving pictures in which the romantic past is revived. For some years the Nevada Historical Society officers have had in mind the giving of such a pageant in the semicentennial year. But nothing had been accomplished toward the writing or other organization of the work. Therefore when Reno arranged for a July carnival in the summer of 1914 and a few weeks previous to the event invited the Historical Society to give its pageant, very hurried and inadequate preparations were made. The play was given at night on the Mackay Athletic Field at the University of Nevada. This field is a natural amphitheater and has a splendid grandstand on the south side, the training quarters being located on the north side of the field. Here, as well as in the University gymnasium, dressing rooms were provided. The athletic field is a large grass plot with a wide cinder track around the outer circumference. Across the middle of this field extending from east to west a bank of pine trees, brought from the Sierra for this occasion, were set up to form a background. An Indian Campoodie and a log cabin together with improved thrones completed the scenery. Myriads of electric lights among the trees gave the appearance of a veritable fairy land while huge searchlights, operated from the top of the grandstand, lighted that part of the field which was used as a stage. Because of the wide stretch of cinder track which was not available for our use, but which intervened between the audience and the actors, the effect was chiefly dependent upon pantomime, dancing, and symbolic costuming. The latter was particularly good, having been worked out by a professional costumer. The dancing was exquisite and unusually effective. Lantern slides and megaphone calls and banners were used in addition to printed programs to further interpret the scenes. One of the three largest audiences ever assembled in the State of Nevada witnessed the execution of the pageant. Not only the grand-stand but the banks of the amphitheater were packed with spectators, and on the rim beyond and above were hundreds of automobiles with late comers who could find no other place to view the spectacle.

Yet many of the townspeople and all the University members were absent from Reno on vacation trips. Many requests were made for a repetition of the pageant and it was therefore deemed wise in planning for the semicentennial celebration in Admission Day week to include the pageant in the program. The lateness of the season made advisable a daytime exhibition which necessitated considerable change in arrangements. This time the manager of the Majestic Theater, who is also a patriotic member of the Historical Society, undertook to arrange a stage setting by means of a huge theater curtain with pine trees at each end. This proved very effective. But the weather was inauspicious. All morning the sky was overcast and before the pageant was nearly over in the afternoon, a cold wind and rain set in which drove many of the spectators from their places. Yet both this and the previous rendition were pronounced successful. Both were brilliant spectacles and both betokened the growth of community spirit in the hundreds of participants from all classes and creeds. Many of the actors had either lived through the original of the scenes enacted or were descendants of these Pioneers who had. Thus was gained the realization that our growth as a State had been rapid as well as our birth a labored one. The strong vital feeling of relationship to the pioneer days is the greater because we of today can reach out and even touch those who made the early history of the Commonwealth. The pageant gave a vivid conception of our historical origin and of its significance. Still the greater emphasis was upon the building of the State in its various communities and institutions and upon its relation to the National Government. It did not forget to show the vital modern forces of our life and growth, nor did it forget to look to the future in forecasting an even more self-reliant and socialized people in a more permanently prosperous physical state. Truly the pageant may be termed "a prayer of inspiration," for it points to a finer and more democratic life than we have yet known.

In the construction of the Nevada pageant, hurried and imperfect as it was, thought was had to historical accuracy. Wherever possible, real historical scenes of casual importance were enacted and sometimes the exact words were quoted. When dramatic effect necessitated a modification, the inaccuracy was corrected in the historical explanations. Symbolic scenes expressive of general conditions depicted the undramatic periods which were yet necessary to give the connection and perspective.

Grand-Stand, Bleachers, and Banks of Amphitheater at Mackay Athletic Field

Except in its local features this pageant lays no claim to originality, but is based upon previous ones too numerous to mention. Only so could it have been struck off in a breath, as it were, in the pressing hurried life of the frontier. If, through reliving the history of their State, the people of this community shall have revealed to them more clearly the significance of their past and come to glory in it, if they shall develop more deeply the idea of community betterment, if thereby they shall feel more strongly their debt to the country at large and experience a larger national pride, if thereby they shall be spurred to greater efforts to develop their natural and spiritual resources, the drama of the desert and of the camp will not have been in vain.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>The pageant material is printed in detail with the hope that it may prove helpful to teachers and other community leaders in staging bits of Nevada history in various places in the State.

Unfortunately few pictures were taken of the pageant. The flashlights taken at the evening program were not wholly successful and the cloudy weather which prevailed during the daylight rendition in October prevented the taking of views at that time. The real historical illustrations which are used herewith may aid in revivifying the scenes.

He is followed by Clio, the muse of history, with her attendants, who bear an appropriate banner. Then comes the brass band playing and the chorus of singers. When they arrive at the center of the field the band music ceases, the herald blows his bugle and the following recitative is spoken:

Ye who would learn the glory of your past
And form a forecast of the things to be
Give heed to this, Nevada's trumpet blast,
And see her pictured life in pageantry.

The herald then rides from the field and the band and singers march to seats at left of field while Clio is escorted to her throne.

SCENE III—Historical Setting—The Founding of New Spain in America

Historical Note—This scene is not historically accurate but gives in condensed form the conception of relationship of the Southwest to Spain in the Sixteenth Century. As a result of the work of Columbus, Americus Vespuccius, Ojeda, Pinzon, Nicuesa, Ponce de Leon, Balboa, de Soto, Cortez, Magellan, Pizarro and others, all of Southern North America, Central America, and nearly all of Northern South America was held and governed by Spain in the time of Charles V. Cortez in 1521 conquered the Aztec Empire in Mexico. During the next three years he sent out expeditions to explore and occupy and colonize the territories both to the north and south of Mexico and thus brought under the dominion of New Spain a vast extent of country. In 1522 in recognition of his services he was made governor and captain-general of New Spain by Charles V. But jealous and disappointed officials gained the ear of the Emperor, impressing upon him the idea that Cortez was ambitious for an empire of his own. Owing to these machinations and intrigues, Cortez was forced to resign his offices and return to Spain in 1528 to exonerate himself before his sovereign. He resolved to strengthen himself and his story by the presentation of splendid gifts. He was received with wild demonstrations and great honors were heaped upon him at court. In July, 1529, he was given twenty-two towns in New Spain with vassals and lands and full jurisdiction, as well as the two palaces of Montezuma. The title of Marqués and the title and authority of Captain-General of New Spain and provinces and Coasts of the South Sea were also conferred upon him with power to appoint and remove lieutenants. This was, after all, small compensation for the great services and vast conquests made without cost to the Crown.

Columbus and Isabella were dead at the time of this scene. But it was because of them that New Spain now existed and was the leading Spanish colony in the Indies.

This scene represents the Spanish sovereigns presenting a commission to Cortez.

A banner, "Founding of New Spain," announces the scene.<sup>1</sup> The band plays while Columbus and two sailors enter and ascend a small throne from which Columbus views the entire pageant.

Then appear four Spanish soldiers, escorting Queen Isabella in her gorgeous robes of white and purple and Emperor Charles in royal purple. They are accompanied by pages and ladies and gentlemen in waiting, who ascend the throne on the left center of the field. These are followed by court dancers. After the attendants have paid obeisance to royalty, Cortez, dressed in black and gold, enters with Indians in flowing plumage and gaudy ornaments.<sup>2</sup> They all bow low before the throne and Charles commands the soldiers to escort Cortez to his presence. While the Indians squat around the base of the throne, Cortez ascends and kneels at the feet of the Queen. Being commanded to arise he does so and with grace and dignity presents his Indians and other gifts consisting of curious plants and heavy coffers from the New World, and then describes the country and his achievements therein and presents a memorial containing details of the conquest.<sup>1</sup> Charles, who is greatly impressed by the story and gifts, commands Cortez to rise, and unrolling a commission as Captain-General he presents it to Cortez. A Spanish gentleman then sings the Spanish national song, after which the dancers execute the Spanish Court dance.

SCENE IV—Historical Setting—The English Court and New Spain.

Historical Note—Although England always resented the Papal grant of the New World to Spain in 1493, she did not make bold to openly defy the monopoly thus established until the Elizabethan Era, when a sentiment of resistance was aroused because of the persecution of the Protestant Netherlands by Philip II. Francis Drake, the first of the English buccaneers, made several piratical voyages to Spanish coasts in 1570–1580, each time returning with much treasure. In the fourth expedition he sailed through the Straits of Magellan and looted the Spanish towns on the Pacific Coast of South America, finally capturing a richly laden galleon. Being afraid to return by the Straits he then proceeded in his ship, the Golden Hind, to the San Francisco coast where he planted the English flag and thence made his way eastward around India to England. He came heavily laden with gold, silver, and precious stones.

A banner, "English Court Receives Treasures from New Spain," announces the scene. The band plays while Queen Elizabeth in royal robes and diadem, and accompanied by Sir Walter Raleigh, her devoted admirer, preceded by soldiers and followed by pages and ladies and gentlemen in waiting, approaches and, after due ceremony, ascends the throne at right of field. Francis Drake, garbed in rich velvet and brocade, with his soldiers then comes upon the scene and, bowing low before Queen Elizabeth, places his gifts at her feet.<sup>1</sup> A Spanish ambassador comes from the Spanish Court to protest against her acceptance of the stolen treasures, but to no avail. He therefore sadly returns to the Spanish Court while Drake makes no effort to conceal his pleasure at the discomfiture of the Spanish nobleman.<sup>2</sup> He then unbuckles his sword and, kneeling, presents it to the Queen who looks at it and slowly withdraws the sword from its scabbard and with it knights Francis<sup>3</sup> and commands him to rise<sup>4</sup> while the attendants applaud. The Court is then seated while Sir Francis sings a stanza of "Drink to me only with thine eyes" and the court dancers perform the minuet.

Episode II—Discovery and Exploration of Nevada

SCENE I—Allegorical; Natural Setting

Cast of Characters:

Spirit of the Desert—Mr. Chas. Bull.

Spirit of Civilization—Miss Helen Fulton.

The scene portrays the Desert wrestling with Civilization for possession of Nature in Nevada. A suitable banner and a crash of music from the band announces the coming of the Spirit of the Desert to wrestle with the Spirit of Civilization approaching from the East. The Spirit of the Desert is tall and powerful and rough in manner. His legs and arms and head are bare. His hair is long and shaggy, the color of the sagebrush in which he is clad. He comes sneaking onto the field and threatens with his huge sagebrush club the sprites who appear in the foreground. Some of these are dressed in dark-green robes and purple veils and represent Mountains. Others clad in brown and green and bearing branches of pine and oak impersonate the Forests, and still others draped in blue shot with white tell of the Rivers, while behind them appear the Valleys in light-green draperies with flower garlands. All these sprites bow before the desert, but the Mountains and Forests are defiant in spirit, whereas the Rivers and Valleys are humble supplicants. Thus is the Desert triumphant, but not for long. The Spirit of Civilization, garbed in shimmering white and gold, with a trumpet calls to the sprites who immediately start to their feet but again quickly fall before the threatening club of the Desert. Then ensues the contest for control of the Sprites. The Spirit of Civilization through the subtle influence of the fairy dance wins to her side the Rivers and Valleys, and the Desert by brute force holds the Mountains and Deserts for his own, but is compelled to retreat with them to the outskirts, while Civilization holds the center of the field and in turn welcomes the first human inhabitants to the country.

Spanish Settlements in California

SCENE II—The Pre-Spanish and Spanish Periods of Exploration and Occupation ; Primitive Indians ; Spanish Exploration and Missionary Work in Southern Nevada.

Historical Note—During the period of exploration and settlement by the Spanish in Northern Mexico and Lower California, exploring expeditions, organized in the hope of finding other rich cities in the country to the north, went from Mexico into Alta California and sometimes into Arizona, New Mexico, and beyond. At least a few of these expeditions passed through Southern Nevada. Father Francisco Garces who was with Colonel Anza in 1775-6 did missionary work among Nevada Indians.

Cast of Characters:

Indians—Mrs. F. C. Durand, Miss Fannie Richardson, and real Indians led by Mr. Asbury and Mr. Walter Van Emon and Capt. Bender.

Spanish Explorers and Friars—Knights of Columbus led by Mr. J. J. Burke: Messrs. J. Peters, R. H. Carmody, C. H. Leonesio, T. F. Banigan, J. J. Rernan, A. J. Mergen, D. J. Krayenbuhl, Jos. Enos, Frank Byington, Dr. E. J. Cunningham. (In the second pageant Messrs. S. C. Feemster and L. R. Bronson also assisted.)

This scene portrays the Spanish Friars converting Nevada Indians.

A banner "Native Nevadans" announces the scene. The Indians with bow and arrows skulk onto the field from both sides and through the trees at the back. After bringing down their game they build a fire near their campoodle and perform a native dance until interrupted by the sudden appearance of two richly dressed Spanish soldiers carrying the Spanish flag and followed by friars and still other soldiers. They are preceded by a courier carrying a banner "Spain in Southern Nevada." The Indians stealthily yet hurriedly retreat to the trees and watch the intruders closely from afar. Their movements show suspicion and curiosity.

Meanwhile the soldiers and friars station a large bell in the center of the field and proceed to ring it, calling thus to the heathen to come and receive the faith of Jesus Christ. The Indians one by one creep forward enticed by gifts which are offered them by the friars who also exhibit rosaries. Having gained the confidence of the Indians one friar draws a redskin aside together with a Spanish soldier and signs to them to bring a large cross to the site of the bell. They quickly return with the cross which is now planted by the friar while all kneel. Then he raises the rosary and recites a prayer after which all rise and the soldiers plant the Spanish flag. All salute the flag and then march off the field, the soldiers and friars followed by the now subdued Indians.

SCENE III—American Trappers and Explorers: Fremont Party.

Historical Note—Beginning with the year 1825 fur trappers from the United States and Canada began to penetrate Nevada by way of the Humboldt River. In the early 30's Kit Carson was here as trapper, guide, and Indian fighter, and for him Carson River was named. When, therefore, the United States government in 1843 sent Col. Fremont to Oregon and the Great Basin on an exploring expedition Kit Carson was employed as a guide. The party came from Oregon over the Sierra in December, 1843, and followed down the east side of the mountains to Pyramid Lake, thence up the Truckee and across to the Carson and Walker rivers, and finally found their way back into California and the Sacramento Valley in 1844. They had with them a small howitzer which was abandoned in the mountains near Markleeville.

Cast of Characters:

Kit Carson—Mr. Geo. I. James.

Fremont—Dr. J. E. Church, Jr.

Indians—Mr. Walter Van Emmon and others.

Trappers and Explorers—Messrs. Edwin Krall, Harry Skerry, Glen Engle, Phil Cowgill, Prin. Smith, and Rev. Harry Sheldon.

“California and New Mexico, including the present Nevada, thereby became territories of the Mexican Republic.”

The scene represents Fremont and his party searching for a pass into California in January, 1844.

A banner “Fremont Party” gives meaning to the pantomime. Fremont with a party of explorers comes on the field dragging a small cannon. They lead their horses onto the field and hobble them, then proceed to build a camp-fire and cook a meal. After supper they roll up in their blankets for the night. Toward morning they are awakened by Indians, who, seeing the fire, come in from the woods in hope of securing presents of food and clothing. They bring with them a few pounds of pine nuts which Fremont purchases, thus giving these Americans their first knowledge of the nut food of the Washoes and Piutes. The Indians who are scantily clothed are offered presents of scarlet cloth if they will act as guides across the mountains, but after conferring together while they look at the offerings wistfully, they point to the snow on the mountains and draw their hands across their necks, and raise them above their heads to show the depth, thus signifying that it is impossible to get through. They sign to the white men to go to the southward over a lower range. One native finally agrees to go with them. Kit Carson examines the feet of the horses now totally without shoes and badly cut by the ice and rocks. The howitzer is here abandoned and having made the best preparation possible under the circumstances, the party starts toward California. The Indian guide though shivering keeps the scarlet cloth tightly rolled to protect it from the wet. He soon forsakes the party and sneaks back to his fellows, who all now vanish from the field, while a banner calls to mind the ill-fated Donner party.

Episode III—Early Settlement

Historical Note—Through a series of revolutions terminating in 1821, Mexico became independent of Spain and soon thereafter was changed from an empire into a republic. California and New Mexico, including the present Nevada, thereby became territories of the Mexican Republic. At the close of the Mexican War in 1848, Mexico ceded New Mexico and California to the United States. The Compromise Act of 1850 organized the territory of Utah inclusive of the larger part of the present Nevada and Utah, about half of Colorado and smaller portions of several other States. Just previous to this addition to United States territory the Latter Day Saints had settled at Great Salt Lake. Offshoots from that settlement had started trading stations at favorable points in order to profit from the California travel by the plains route. One of these stations was situated at the base of the Sierra in Carson Valley, and was known as Mormon Station.

Here was located the first permanent house erected in Nevada and here, after the mines were opened up, came the prospectors to barter their gold dust for provisions. At first the mail was carried from Sacramento to Mormon Station on snowshoes by "Snowshoe Thompson" until this crude method of transportation was superseded by the pony express. Hank Monk was the veteran stage driver who took Horace Greeley in record time from Carson City to Placerville where Greeley was to deliver a lecture. On starting Greeley told Hank he was anxious to go through quickly. Hank cracked his whip and started at a terrible pace. The stage bounced up and down in such a way as to jolt the buttons off Greeley's coat, whereupon the latter cried out to Hank to go easy and Hank called back, "Keep your seat, Horace, and I'll get you there on time"—which he did. When the Mormons abandoned western Utah in 1856 the country was left practically without government, being attached to Great Salt Lake County for judicial purposes. While the remaining inhabitants were petitioning Congress for a territorial government, they were forced to handle the problem of crime as best they could. Finally Probate Judge Childs was sent to Mormon Station. The hanging of Lucky Bill is the most conspicuous event of the period. He was accused and convicted of cattle stealing and murder.

This scene depicts life in the first permanent settlement in Nevada.

A banner "Early Settlement" introduces the scene. A courier bearing an American flag rides in hot haste onto the field,<sup>1</sup> proclaiming that the Mexican War is ended and that Mexico has ceded Upper California<sup>2</sup> to the United States.<sup>3</sup> All lights are extinguished except the searchlight which covers the flag at front of field while the band plays "Star-Spangled Banner."

comes around to the cabin door where some of its occupants alight, apparently intent on remaining, while others pursue their way to California with their cows and sheep, box of chickens, and cooking utensils loaded within and following on behind. As the Pioneers sit in the dooryard playing cards, prospectors come with gold dust to buy supplies at the Station. Then appears the first pony express rider<sup>1</sup> speeding like the wind on a splendid horse. As he comes crashing up to the Station two men hold a fresh impatient steed and the transfer of rider and mail bag is quickly made and away they fly out of sight in a twinkling. A little later Horace Greeley<sup>2</sup> comes in sight driven by Hank Monk in the old Placerville stage coach. Greeley is wildly shouting,<sup>3</sup> "Go easy, Hank, go easy," while the driver replies, "Keep your seat, Horace, I'll get you there on time." They soon disappear from sight. Next enter the "601" or Vigilance Committee of Virginia City and arrest the gambler "Lucky Bill" from the cabin.<sup>4</sup> As Bill is lassoed and thrown and dragged from the field the band plays the Rogues March. Then the Pioneers at the cabin dance the Virginia Reel and all disappear.

Episode IV—Pre-Statehood Period

SCENE I—The Discovery and Settlement of the Comstock.

Historical Note—About thirty miles northeast of Mormon Station gold and silver were discovered on the slope of Mt. Davidson in the latter 50's. The richness of the deposits caused a fever of excitement and soon miners from California came in large numbers to secure claims. A town sprang up and was christened "Virginia City" by a drunken prospector who bore the nickname of "Old Virginia."

Banners give the titles, "Pre-Statehood Period" and "Comstock." Two miners enter and calling other prospectors from a cabin show them gold in a pan and point to the distant hills where it was found. They rush off to investigate. Soon a crowd of people of all descriptions covers the field. Old Virginia in a drunken revel falls down and breaks a bottle of whisky on the ground and cries out, "I baptize this ground Virginia."<sup>1</sup> A banner bears the name "Virginia" and another "Devil's Gate Toll Road, 50 cts., Pass up." The saw mill, grist mill, and the telegraph are represented in turn as contributing to the prosperity of the great silver camp. The gamblers are busy with their cards, children are playing merrily around and an air of happiness pervades the scene, when suddenly the Spirit of War appears and all flee from his presence.

Hank Monk and "Snowshoe" Thompson

SCENE II—Indian War

Historical Note—Considerable trouble occurred between the white men and the Nevada Indians along the Humboldt from the very beginning of overland travel. But not until 1860 did disaffection ripen into war. Then the Piutes around Pyramid Lake began murdering people and burning property. Companies of undisciplined soldiers were formed which went out from Virginia City in pursuit of the Indians. An engagement took place near Pyramid Lake. Major Ormsby, who was in command, was killed. The men fled toward Virginia City as best they could. Volunteers and regular soldiers from California came to the aid of Virginia troops under Captain Storey, and together they overcame the Indians near Pyramid Lake. But Captain Storey fell in the battle. Forts were established along the chief routes by the U. S. government and maintained until danger from the natives was over.

Cast of Characters:

Flaming Spirit of War—Mr. H. F. Alciatore. (Raymond Kyle in first pageant.)

Chief Winnemucca—Capt. Bender.

Indians—Real natives led by Mr. Walter Van Emmon.

Soldiers under Capt. Storey—University cadets led by Capt. Applewhite.

The scene portrays the Pyramid Indian War, 1860-1.

A banner announces "Indian War." A man dressed in bright red, brandishing a naked sword represents the Flaming Spirit of War, scattering the young people who are dancing on the green. He leaps into the center of the field and dances the Sword Dance in frenzied fashion. When the motif of war has thus been well stated a messenger from Western Union<sup>2</sup> rides on in great haste announcing the burning of Williams's Station by the Indians and the killing of the men in charge. Next appear the Indians themselves in war costume, whooping and yelling. From the same direction come the soldiers in pursuit of the redskins. Then a herald announces: "Resolved, that during 60 days or until the settlement of the present Indian difficulties no claim or mining ground within the territory shall be subject to relocation or liable to be jumped for non-work."

Then follows a battle with the Indians and the scene closes with Capt. Winnemucca and the white men smoking the pipe of peace.<sup>1</sup>

SCENE III—Territorial Government

Historical Note—The lack of government in western Utah has hitherto been mentioned. Finally in 1861 the Federal Government granted a territorial organization to this section under the name of "Nevada." James W. Nye was appointed by President Lincoln as Governor and Orion Clemens was made Territorial Secretary. These and the other officers of the new government sent from Washington came, some by stage across the plains and some by sea to California and thence across the mountains. Governor Nye came in the latter way, while Orion Clemens and his brother, Mark Twain, came overland. This scene is inaccurate in that it depicts them all arriving together. Carson City had been declared the Capital of the territory.

Governor Nye—Mr. J. F. George.

Mark Twain—Mr. C. H. Asbury.

Citizens of Western Utah—Messrs. Chas. Nichols, Herbert Tait, Joe Hall, Tom Fitzgerald, and others.

The scene represents a party of citizens three miles from Mormon Station meeting Gov. Nye and escorting him to Carson City.

Banners announce "Territorial Government" and show picture of Territorial Seal. A Concord stagecoach drawn by six horses bearing Gov. Nye, Secretary Orion Clemens with "four pounds of U. S. Statutes and six pounds of unabridged dictionary," and Mark Twain with "pipes and five pounds of smoking tobacco" enters from the west and meets a hay wagon approaching from the east. On the hay wagon is an improvised bar with various sorts of whisky, beer, etc. Behind it are all kinds of vehicles, bearing the residents of Carson City. Some are on horseback, some on burros, and a few on foot. Gov. Nye believes he is going to be held up by a mob, but is soon reassured and from his seat beside the driver makes a speech. "They talk about the wild and woolly West. I find the most hospitable people I have ever met."<sup>1</sup> After refreshments the party goes with the hay wagon to Carson City to establish the Territorial Government of Nevada.<sup>2</sup>

Capt. Storey and Capt. Winnemucca

SCENE IV—Civil War; Boys leave for war

Historical Note—In 1861 a company of volunteer infantry went from Nevada to join the California regiments for the Civil War. In 1863 six companies each of cavalry and infantry were raised in Nevada. Company A Nevada Territory Cavalry Volunteers were recruited at Silver City and was commanded by Capt. C. B. Zabriskie. In 1864 it marched to Salt Lake where it helped to repress rebellious uprisings and aided against the Indians. It was mustered out in 1865.

Cast of Characters:

Governor Nye—Mr. J. F. George.

Capt. Zabriskie—Capt. Applewhite.

Soldiers—University Cadets.

Women with flags and gifts—Mrs. J. F. George, Mrs. A. M. Warren, Mrs. Pike, Mrs. B. F. Dolan, Mrs. Drappo, Mrs. Feelan, Mrs. Raitt, and Miss Prouty.

The soldiers in new uniforms and preceded by the band enter and drill at center of field. The women present them with Bibles and sewing packages and tearfully bid them good-bye.

Gov. Nye then turns toward a group of women who carry a large new silk flag. One of them brings flag to him. The Governor says to the soldiers: "The women of Nevada, your mothers and wives, your sisters and daughters, have made this flag for you, and have asked me to present it to you for them."

Capt. Zabriskie—"Present, Arms!"

Gov. Nye—"Men of Company A, Nevada Territorial Cavalry Volunteers, let this flag be to you the emblem of your country. Guard it well as you fight for her cause." The Governor hands the flag to Capt. Zabriskie who takes it while the drum beats.

Capt. Zabriskie—"Your Excellency, in the name of my command I wish to assure you of our allegiance whatever may come; and we thank the women of Nevada for this flag. We will bear it to victory or we will sleep in honorable graves beneath its folds."

The troops are then started on their way east by the command of Gov. Nye.

SCENE V—Sale of Sanitary Sack of Flour

Historical Note—Quite as much as men, the U. S. government needed, in the Civil War period, money for the care of its sick and wounded soldiers. In 1863 the expenses of the Sanitary Commission were $200,000 a month. All over the country sanitary fairs were held to raise money for the fund. In Austin, Nevada, Reuel Colt Gridley, a War Democrat, wagered a sack of flour that the Democratic nominee for Mayor would be elected. The wager was accepted by Dr. Herrick, a county official. If the latter lost he was to carry the sack from Clifton to Upper Austin to the tune of "Dixie." If Gridley lost, he was to carry the flour from Upper Austin to Clifton to the tune of "Old John Brown." Gridley lost and paid the bet. The sack of flour was trimmed with ribbons of red, white and blue and decorated with flags. As the long procession moved down the street, the spectators cheered, the steam whistles blew, and great good feeling prevailed. The band played "John Brown" and the people sang, "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah." At Clifton the flour was delivered to Dr. Herrick with due ceremony. Then the crowd adjourned to a neighboring saloon and drank to one another's health. An argument arose as to what disposal to make of the flour. The Republicans proposed to make griddle cakes of it and eat them all themselves. The Democrats declared that they were as loyal to the Union as were the Republicans and proposed to test the matter by putting up the flour at auction and selling it repeatedly for the benefit of the Sanitary Commission. This was done and a large sum was netted. Mr. Gridley later took the flour to other Nevada towns, then to Sacramento and San Francisco, and later to the Eastern States. Before he was through $275,000 had been collected for the Fund.

Cast of Characters:

Gridley—Mr. Lem Allen.

Man with Sponge—Judge W. D. Jones.

Man with Broom—Mr. Chas. Rullison.

Bartender—Mr. John Wright.

Innkeeper—Mr. J. F. George.

Populace—Mrs. H. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Luke, Miss Luke, etc.

The scene, as nearly as possible, is an exact reproduction of the original event in Austin.

A banner announces: "Sale of Gridley Sack of Flour." The band playing "Old John Brown" heads a procession<sup>1</sup> consisting of Herrick carrying Gridley's hat and cane; Gridley's son, a boy of thirteen, with flag; Gridley carrying the decorated sack of flour on his shoulder; two members of the Democratic Central Committee with large flags; another member with a broom, and another with a large sponge carried aloft on a pole; the bartender, auctioneer, and innkeeper; and in the rear a crowd of men, women and children followed by a rabble of Indians. The procession halts, having finished its journey to Clifton. A feeling of good fellowship prevails and the assemblage takes up the chorus, "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah!" They shout, "Go to it, Gridley!" "Stick to it, Gridley!" "Never say die, old man!" The ceremonies of confessing defeat are enacted. Gridley hands the sack of flour to Herrick who accepts it with the air of a conqueror receiving the sword of the conquered. The flags are surrendered and the broom given up in recognition of the fact that the winning party has swept all before it. The sponge is placed beside the other trophies to signify that the winners are entitled to absorb all places of profit and trust in the city. They rap at the door of the cabin and the bartender opens the door. After a conversation he brings out glasses and drinks are served. Then the principal characters start an argument over the disposal of the flour.<sup>2</sup> The Republicans declare they will make griddle cakes and not give the Democrats any. The Democrats protest that they also are friendly to the Union cause and ready to do all they can for it. Mr. Gridley proposes a test in the following words: "This crowd of people has had its fun at my expense; let us see who will do the most for the sick and wounded soldiers. We will put this sack of flour up at public auction and sell it, with the understanding that whoever the purchaser may be, he shall pay the amount bid and give the flour back to be sold again for the benefit of the Sanitary Commission." The proposition is accepted and the innkeeper brings out a chair for the use of the auctioneer. Mr. C. L. Wiggin introduces the auctioneer,<sup>3</sup> and the auction begins. Gridley bids $300<sup>4</sup>; Noyes, a Republican, $350<sup>5</sup>; Buol, the defeated candidate for Mayor, offers certificates of indebtedness of the U. S. Indian Department for $1,115, but as all bids are payable in gold his bid is rejected.<sup>6</sup> When large coins like twenties are exhausted smaller ones are accepted. Some one bids a town lot and a real estate man makes a bid in gold for the lot and the money goes to the Commission. Bids of scrip and mining stock are accepted when converted into money. A large bug crawls up a man's leg and is seized and auctioned off for $10. A man who speaks disrespectfully of the bug is thrashed. Banners show the totals here and elsewhere for the fund.<sup>7</sup>

Banners: "$4,000 in Austin." "Army of Lord, Alf Doten." "Gold Hill, Yellow

Reuel Colt Gridley, a War Democrat, wagered a sack of flour on a local election. He lost and had to carry the flour through the streets to the tune of "John Brown."

<sup>2</sup>Megaphone: "We Republicans will have some griddle cakes: the other fellows don't get any." "Thunder, we're just as friendly to the Union as you are; and will do just as much for the cause as you do." "Very well; we'll see."

<sup>3</sup>Lantern Slide: "Mr. Wiggin in introducing the auctioneer says that innumerable poultices can be made from the flour, and that when the last bidder shall have made his last offer it is the intention of Mr. Gridley to make the sack up into griddle cakes and bombard the walls of rebellious Richmond with a blockade of apple dumplings."

By the way, Nevada flour seems to rise without yeast. If it goes no further, it will make Reese River and Nevada shining parts of the history of our Sanitary Fund on the Pacific."

While the band plays all march off field.

At the close of this scene Mrs. Gridley Wood, daughter of Mr. Gridley, presents the original sack of flour to the Nevada Historical Society.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, and Your Honor, Chief Justice Talbot: It is with the utmost pleasure and with proud satisfaction, that I, as the daughter of Reuel Colt Gridley, and in behalf of the surviving members of his family, present to you this sack of flour, which has made the name of the State of Nevada famous throughout the world. It is our earnest wish that it shall ever be preserved as a historic relic of the good deeds done in the name of humanity, and as a lasting memory of the man and the scenes wherein so much good was wrought. I thank you."

It is accepted by Chief Justice G. F. Talbot, President of the Society.

Historical Note—The Nevada companies were used chiefly in protecting the frontier against the Indians. They were highly honored on their return. Only a few of the veterans are now living.

Uncle Sam—Prof. A. E. Turner.

The soldiers march through in battered condition while the accompanying band plays "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground." Uncle Sam gives his tribute to the real Civil War veterans seated at the right front of field. They rise while he pronounces it: "Veterans of the Civil War: I bid you welcome. You have witnessed the progress and fulfillment of American ideals—the faith that brought the Spanish and English explorers across uncharted seas—the courage that led the Pioneers from their old homes in the East to establish a new State in this

You have participated in a mighty conflict which brought victory to the cause of the Union and which has broken the shackles of the slave. Upon this strengthened foundation of our Republic shall rise a united country which welcomes the people of all nationalities who stand for an independent, courageous, and loyal citizenship, upon which rests the future greatness of the American Nation." The veterans resume seats and the chorus then sings "Tenting."

Episode V—Statehood

Historical Note—In 1863 the people of Nevada Territory sent representatives to a Constitutional Convention at Carson City to make a frame of government for the proposed State of Nevada. The constitution there made was rejected by the people at the polls. But in February of 1864 Congress passed a new enabling Act which was signed by the President on March 21, 1864. On the Fourth of July a second Constitutional Convention was held at Carson City, and a second constitution was framed, which exempted the property in mines from taxation. The document was completed on the 27th day of July, 1864, and was adopted at the polls on September 7. On the 31st of October the President proclaimed Nevada a State of the Union.

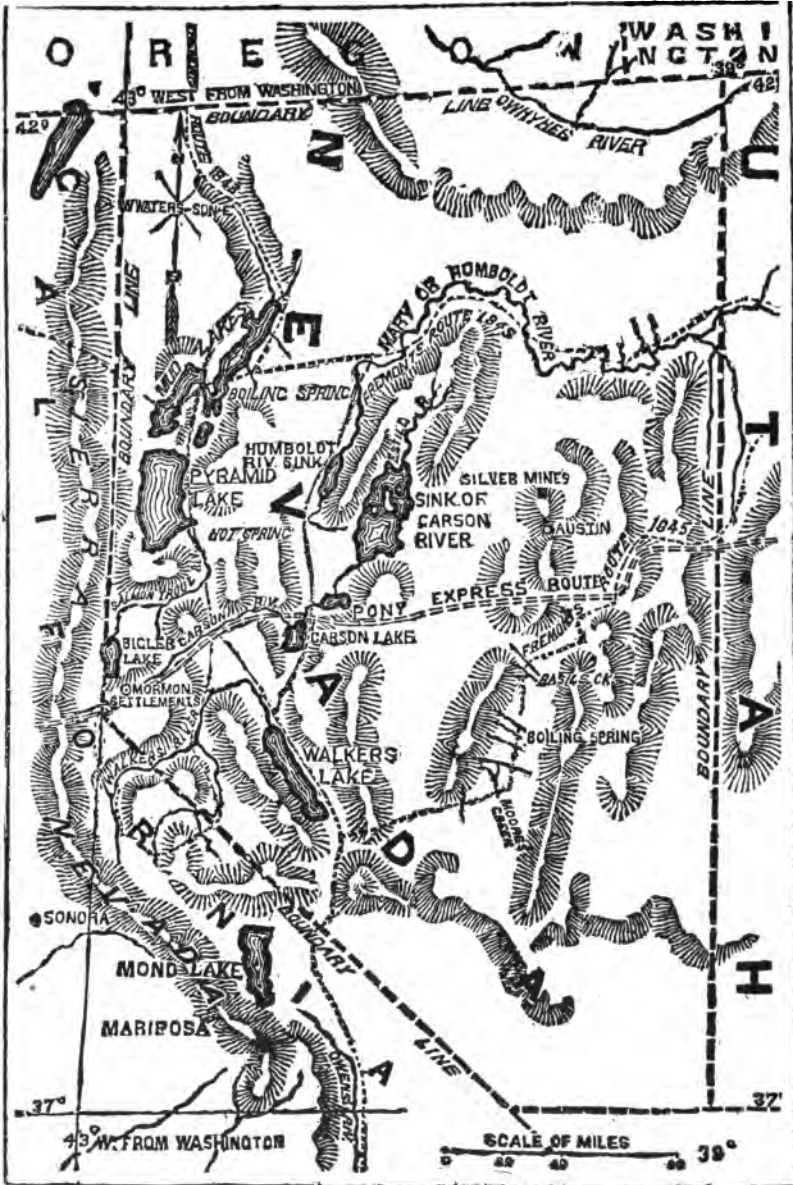

Monument erected to Reuel Colt Gridley at Stockton, California, by the G. A. R. and other patriotic citizens

William M. Stewart, one of Nevada's first United States Senators, says in his "Reminiscences":

It was understood that the Government at Washington was anxious that Nevada should become a State in order that her Senators and Representative might assist in the adoption of amendments to the Constitution in aid of the restoration of the Southern States after the Union should be vindicated by war. Another and very important factor in inducing the people to vote for statehood was the unsatisfactory condition under a territorial form of government * * * The morning after I took my seat in the Senate I called upon President Lincoln at the White House. He received me in the most friendly manner, taking me by both hands, and saying: "I am glad to see you here. We need as many loyal States as we can get, and, in addition to that, the gold and silver in the region you represent has made it possible for the Government to maintain sufficient credit to continue this terrible war for the Union. I have observed such manifestations of the patriotism of your people as assure me that the Government can rely on your State for such support as is in your power."

On April 14, 1865, President Lincoln was assassinated.

carried a banner representing that event, and Judge G. N. Folsom, who sat in the Constitutional Convention of 1864, carried the banner for that gathering.

Banner announces "Statehood."

While the chorus sings "Columbia," Judge Virden marches through with ban-

pursuant to the conditions prescribed by the fifth section of the Act of Congress aforesaid, and the certificate required by the said Act, and also a copy of the Constitution and ordinances, have been submitted to the President of the United States:

Now, therefore, be it known, that I, ABRAHAM LINCOLN, President of the United States, in accordance with the duty imposed upon me by the Act of Congress aforesaid, do hereby declare and proclaim that the said State of Nevada is admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this thirty-first day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the independence of the United States the eighty-ninth.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By the President: WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

Nevada kneels in supplication and Columbia, with hands outstretched, assists Nevada in rising, and places her on the throne beside herself. While the Nevada song is being rendered by Mrs. Lunsford, Lincoln leaves the field. Then enter Senators Nye and Stewart, with valises, on their way to Washington to represent the new born State. A banner says "To Washington." They make their adieus to Nevada and pass on.

A banner telling of the ratification of the 13th amendment is next displayed,<sup>1</sup> and a float follows bearing the Goddess of Liberty, Lincoln, and a slave girl. It pauses at center of field and Lincoln in pantomime commands that chains be removed from the arms of slave. The goddess complies and also raises the slave who has been kneeling at her feet. With thanks to Nevada the group disappears on the float and soon after a pistol shot tells of the assassination of Lincoln.<sup>2</sup> The flag is lowered to half-mast and the band plays the funeral march.

MY OWN NEVADA

(Tune: Juanita)

Oh, my Nevada, Dearest home on earth to me, Heed not their laughter Who make light of thee; Love alone hath vision To behold how fair thou art, And thy children only Know thy charms by heart. CHORUS My own Nevada, Thou art very dear to me; My own Nevada, Thou art home to me. Few are thy cities, And thy towns are far between, Scant are thy harvests, And thy fields of green; But thy sagebrush deserts, And thy hills so brown and bare, Have their own strange beauty, In thy lucent air. And, so it seemeth, As if thus to compensate, Thy skies are fairest Where thy harvests wait, On thy treeless hillsides How the colors dawn and die, And where earth is drearest Softest colors lie.	No, not forever Shall thy acres lie untilled; No, not forever Shall thy wealth be spilled In the laps of strangers, Who thy silver locks have shorn. And have mocked thy weakness, Whence their strength was born. No, not forever— Some day shall thy waters stored Flow through thy valleys, And unlock their hoard; And thy fields shall ripple With the laugh of golden grain, And thy hills shall echo With the laugh again. Some day thy children Shall a glad great army be: Some day thy cities Known from sea to sea; Yet they shall not love thee, In that day of thy success, More than we who love thee Just for lovingness.

A group of Pioneers including miners stands about the cabin door. The "Big Four"—Mackay, Fair, Flood, and O'Brien<sup>3</sup>—with heavily loaded valises of bullion enter and talk with the miners. Episode VII—Allegorical; Period of Depression

Historical Note—In 1875 mining stocks on the Comstock had reached a ruinous point of inflation, far exceeding the available capital which they were supposed to represent. When the fever for selling broke out stocks fell from 50 to 250 per cent. The demonetization of silver in 1873 caused a rapid depreciation of that metal in the world's markets, thereby making impossible the working of the cheaper grade ores. Industries other than mining had been little developed. Not only in Virginia but elsewhere throughout Nevada a period of depression set in which lasted until the close of the century in spite of the efforts of Senators Jones and Stewart to bring silver again to its own. Then came the discovery of the great southern camps of Tonopah and Goldfield and capital was again made available for the working of Nevada mines. Also more attention was being given to agriculture and other permanent sources of wealth.

This scene is a symbolic expression of conditions in Nevada from 1875—1890.

After banner announces "Depression" and "Demonetization of Silver" the glooms dressed in black teddies swarm on to the field and perform the Dance of the Glooms. Nevada stands at one side in a spirit of dejection, seemingly unable to adapt herself to the changed conditions. As the movement ceases she sinks to the ground discouraged. The Spirit of Pageantry, the Spirit of Faith in Nevada's Future, because of the spirit of cooperation, enters garbed in bright golden robes and raises Nevada from the ground. The latter takes on new courage and determination and brandishing her sword returns to her throne where she watches the discovery of Tonopah and Goldfield<sup>1</sup> and the revival of many old camps, recalled to mind by appropriate banners, "Remonetization of Silver," "Tonopah," "Goldfield." A lively Stock Exchange of 1906 is also depicted.

This scene shows the cosmopolitan character of Nevada's present population and the diversity of her interests and her culture, presaging her power for the future.

Two banners announce this scene: "Present Outlook" and "Contribution of Nations." A series of folk dances is given in rapid succession to picture the coming of foreigners. Each group is dressed in the national costume and shows symbolically what it has contributed to the making of the State.

Wing-footed Mercury comes with hat and staff adorned with wings and represents the ideas of invention and mining. Ceres, dressed in grain, does the same for agriculture and stock raising. Business, religious orders, fraternal societies, the press, law, individual enterprises, trade unions, state, county, city, women's clubs, boy scouts, and the schools are also represented.<sup>1</sup> Included in the latter is the exhibition of band music by the Stewart Indian School as also the procession of kindergarten children which indicates the rightful place of children in the present development of the State.

which is a cauldron of burning coals on a pedestal and Alma Mater in cap and gown, representing the University. While these are exhibiting in pantomime, a soloist renders the Nevada song: "To Thee We Sing, O, Silver State."

NEVADA SONG

(Air: Maryland, My Maryland)

To thee we sing, O, Silver State,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
October is thy natal date,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
Born in the bosom of the West,
Of all the States we prize thee best,
Here life and love have richer zest,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!

From Reno to the Utah line,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
Thy riches pour from many a mine,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
From Tonopah and Rhyolite,
Virginia, too, and Ely, bright,
Thy metal treasures greet the sight,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!

We love old Pioche's wondrous mines,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
Panaca's lovely verdure lines,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
Las Vegas, too, and Caliente,
The town where Carson pitched his tent,
Full golden are the days we've spent,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!

Goldfield and Bullfrog side by side,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
Pour out their wealth in endless tide,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
We love thy deserts and thy rocks,
We love thy herds, we love thy flocks,
We love thy brooks and granite blocks,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!

Our hardy sires have filled with care,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
Thy fertile vales with homesteads fair,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
Thy cattle graze a thousand hills,
Rare orchards cluster round thy rills,
Thy air resounds with hum of mills,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!

So as the decades roll along,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
In plenty, peace and cheerful song,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!
Our growth in greatness may we see,
In soul and mind and body free,
May all our hearts beat time to thee,
Nevada, oh! Nevada, oh!

SCENE II—Allegorical: Nevada's Choice for the Future.

Cast of Characters:

Spirit of Future—Miss Hazel Hayes.
Water Power—.....
Agriculture—.....
Mining—.....

This scene represents the conscious choice for the future of Nevada of the permanent sources of prosperity, thus showing her growing sense of responsibility.

Water power, agriculture and mines are appropriately symbolized on separate areas of the field. Water power is represented by waterfall, agriculture by a farmer with a scythe and leading a sheep, and mining by the prospector with a pick and pan. Following a banner "Spirit of the Future" the hazy Spirit of the Future floats in and shows favor first to one and then to another of the industries. Finally she decides in favor of agriculture as the permanent source of Nevada's future prosperity, and hand in hand they glide from the scene while the Future also draws the other industries on in the rear by winning words and glances.

SCENE III—Final Review of Pageant by Columbia, Nevada and Europe

Cast of Characters:

All pageanteers.

This scene is a tribute to civilization as wrought by our Pioneers.

Columbia and Nevada and the European courts from their respective thrones review the Pageant procession as it again sweeps onto the field. It gathers around the Spirit of Civilization in the center of the field while a tribute is pronounced to the Pioneers of the State:

"Our forefathers, men of indomitable spirit and God-fearing lineage, made their habitation in California and with the home feeling strong within them gave to their new abode in the desert the name of Nevada, brought from the banks of the Yuba with their picks and their shovels. May the spirit that existed in them in the 50's and found echo in the 70's on the Comstock be an inspiration to all our lineage and may the coming cycle bring to all peace, prosperity, and happiness, by the grace of God who for fifty years has cherished the people of Nevada."

Audience and all pageanteers unite in singing with aid of band and chorus the hymn "America."

<sup>1</sup>An attempt has been made to give the names of all pageanteers, but the list is necessarily incomplete, especially for the last episode. Many hundreds of people participated. The banners were carried by 47 boys from the public schools. A partial list of these standard bearers follows: Clarence Anderson, Morrow Anderson, Teddy Arden, Wren Baker, Del Beach, Herbert Billings, Ernest Brown, John Calhoun, Donald Church, Paul Crawford, Earl Curtis, Melvin Curtis, Herman Davis, Paul Davis, Stanley Davis, Ross Devnon, George Duborg, Homer Forrester, Myron Frank, Eli Francovich, Harold Golding, Raymond Golding, Charles Goodale, Jack Hauschild, William Johnston, Earl Lamb, George Lewis, Edwin Loder, Alva Lonfield, Clyde Lorton, William Mallory, William Merchan, Charles Patterson, Robert Ray, Vandlyn Reider, Donald Richards, Fred Share, Stephen Short, William Simpson, Arthur Snare, Charles Stewell, Elliot Taylor, Carl Webaud, Beverly Weck.
